The Day I Got Wet

LITTLE READERS

Rain taps on the window.
Mia looks at the garden.
Her puppy looks, too.

“May we go outside?”

Mia asks her mom.

“The rain is gentle.”

Mom gives Mia her raincoat.

Mia puts on her boots.

She is ready to go.

“Stay near the house,”
Mom says with a wave.
“We will!” says Mia.

Mia opens her umbrella.
It makes a little roof above her head.

Her puppy trots beside her.

The garden smells fresh.

Drops shine on the leaves.

The rain gets softer.

Drip, drop, drip.

Mia hears birds sing.

Then Mia sees a puddle.

It is wide and shiny.

“Look!” she says.

Mia walks around the puddle.
She does not want to get her boots wet.

But her puppy has a different idea.
He jumps right in!

Splash! Little drops of water fly into the air.
Mia takes a step back.

“You are a wet puppy!”
Mia says with a laugh.
His tail goes swish, swish.

Near the puddle, Mia finds a little toy boat.
She picks it up.

She puts the boat
gently on the water.
It begins to float.

The boat moves slowly across the puddle.
Mia watches it go.

"Sail, little boat!"
she says. Her puppy watches the boat, too.

Whoosh! A breeze blows.
Mia's umbrella moves in her hand.

She reaches for it,
but the umbrella
slips away.

The puppy watches
as it lands on the grass.
Mia walks over.

She picks it up.

"Here you are," she says.

The puppy gives a wag.

Mia looks at her boat.
It has drifted close to the edge of the puddle.

She takes a step closer.

“I can reach it,”

she tells her puppy.

But her boot slips.

Mia waves her arms.

Down she goes!

Plop! Mia sits right in the shallow puddle.
Water splashes around her.

Mia looks at her coat.

It is wet and muddy.

Her boots are wet, too.

The puppy comes close.

He gives Mia a sniff.

His ears lift up.

Mia sees the muddy splash
on her yellow coat.
For a moment, she is quiet.

Then Mia starts to laugh.
"Now I am wet, too!"
she tells her puppy.

Mom comes to the door with a big soft towel.
“Are you all right?” she asks.

“I am all right,” says Mia.

“I sat in a puddle!”

She walks home with her puppy.

Mom wraps the towel around Mia's shoulders.
She helps dry Mia's hair.

Mia hangs up her raincoat.
Little drops fall from it.
"That was a big splash!"

Mia puts on dry clothes.
Her feet feel warm again in a pair of soft socks.

Mom puts the wet boots near the door to dry.
The puppy has a towel, too.

The puppy curls up on his soft towel.
Mia sits beside him.

“You can rest here,”
Mia tells her puppy.
He closes his eyes.

Soon the sun comes out.

Mia looks through the window.

The garden shines.

A rainbow stretches across the bright sky.
“Look, Mom!” says Mia.

Mom and the puppy
come to the window.
They look at the rainbow.

“Today I got wet,” says Mia.

“And I saw a rainbow!”

What a day it was!

What is the weather like at the start?

What does Mia put on?

What does the puppy do
when he sees the puddle?
How does Mia feel?

What does Mia put in the puddle?
What happens to it?

What happens to Mia's umbrella?

How does she get it back?

Why does Mia fall?

Where does she land?

Tell a friend.

How does Mia feel
after she gets wet?
What does the puppy do?

How does Mom help Mia get warm and dry?
Name two things.

What do they see after the rain?
How does the story end?

The End
