The Girl with Two Hats

LITTLE READERS

Mia has two hats.

One is red.

One is blue.

The red hat is for sun.

The blue hat is for rain.

They sit on her bed.

Mia looks out the window.

The sun is shining.

"A sunny day!" she says.

She puts on her red hat.

Her puppy watches her.

“Let us go outside.”

Mia and her puppy
walk in the garden.
Flowers grow by the path.

The red hat shades
Mia's face from the sun.
She smiles at her puppy.

After a while,
Mia sees clouds
in the sky.

A little breeze blows.

Leaves dance along the path.

The puppy looks up.

The sky turns gray.
Mia holds her red hat.
“Is it going to rain?”

A drop falls on her hand.
Then another drop falls.
The puppy shakes his ears.

Mia looks at her hat.
"This one is for sun,"
she says.

“Let us go home
and get my rain hat.”
The puppy follows her.

At home, Mom gives Mia
her blue rain hat.
“Here you are,” she says.

Mia puts her red hat
in a safe dry place.
She will wear it later.

She puts on the blue hat
and her raincoat, too.
Now she is ready.

The puppy wags his tail.

Mia opens an umbrella.

They step outside again.

Rain falls softly
on Mia's blue hat.
Her head stays dry.

The puppy trots nearby.
They walk along the path
under the umbrella.

Mia sees her friend Ben standing under a shelter.
He waves to her.

"Hello, Ben!" says Mia.
"Are you waiting for the rain to stop?"

Ben nods. “I do not have a hat,” he says.
He looks at the rain.

“You can walk with me,” Mia says. “There is room
under my umbrella.”

Ben smiles and steps
under the umbrella.
“Thank you,” he says.

The friends walk together.
The puppy follows them
along the wet path.

Soon the rain slows.
Drip, drop. The clouds
begin to move away.

"The rain is stopping," says Ben. Mia looks up at the brighter sky.

Mia takes off her blue hat.

She carries it carefully.

The puppy wags his tail.

"See you in the garden!"
Ben says. Mia waves
as she heads home.

At home, Mia hangs
her blue hat up to dry.
A drop falls from the brim.

The sun comes out again.
Mia finds her red sunhat
in its safe place.

She puts it on her head.
"Ready for the sun!"
she says with a grin.

Her puppy runs to the door.
Mia and the puppy go outside.

Ben is in the garden.
The friends look at flowers
shining with raindrops.

The puppy plays nearby.
He chases a little ball
across the grass.

Mia's red hat shades her face.
"My sunhat is just right for this weather," she says.

Ben smiles. “And your rain hat helped earlier,” he says.

Later, Mia goes home.
She puts both hats
on their hooks.

The red hat hangs beside the blue hat. Mia looks at them and smiles.

"One hat for sun
and one hat for rain," she tells Mom.

Her puppy rests nearby.
Mia is ready for
